All It Needs Is a Little Attention and the Right "Diet"

If your window air conditioner is to give you the many comfortable hours you expect during the hot days to come, you should do these things:

1. Clean or replace clogged or dirty filters.
2. Lubricate the motor if required.
3. Be certain that nothing obstructs the air passages; check to see that draperies or other objects will not interfere with the air flow.
4. Thoroughly clean dust and lint from all parts—inside and outside.
5. Provide the right "Diet" for it.

Your window air conditioner is built to operate on a certain amount of electricity. If the wiring to it isn't large enough, the electrical "diet" for your air conditioner will be too weak—it won't be getting enough current. So, if you have cleaned and oiled it and have checked to see that the movement of air isn't being obstructed, your air conditioner still doesn't perform as it should, ask your electrician to see if the wiring and fuses are adequate. If additional wiring is needed, it may be paid for monthly with your electric bill.

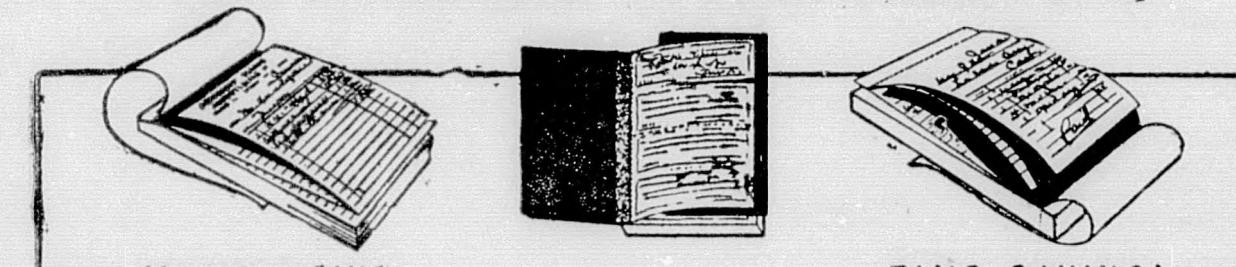

If you prefer that someone do the cleaning, calling and checking for you, your electrical appliance dealer will do so for a moderate charge.

March of Dimes Workers Should Take Their Bows

While individual communities throughout the United States proposed a "Fund for Salk" (Dr. Jonas E. Salk of Pittsburgh who developed the polio vaccine), little has been said of the myriad workers who labored hard each year in the drive to earn the funds for polio research and for rehabilitation of those who had come down with the disease.

Really a lot of credit has to be given the Dozier Brothers, E. W. Atkins and George

West Coffey, every town in the United States, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis which has made the series of three shots available to all children and second graders it seems. West Coffey County parents would fall all over each other in their efforts to sign and return the slip authorizing a doctor to give their child this vaccination. Doctors in Houston County have decided to charge $10 for the series, most of the expense being for the vaccine.

Since God is good, love, mercy, wisdom is always available to prevent them and around and around they there is no reward on this earth. It is another thankless drive to stick with it. It is not true with the March of Dimes, though, that the development of the Salk vaccine which is 90 to 95 per cent successful in immunizing a child against polio in its most crippling form.

The three men named above, and one else who worked to raise money during the March of Dimes, can feel a certain satisfaction any time they see a child all while at play. They know this child and all others partially through their work, this child and all others can take advantage of the Salk vaccine, stand a very small chance of getting crippled polio. That in itself is a real reward for the children are their own. Mr. Atkins will not regret his work this year on the March of Dimes because his three children are all in the age group most susceptible to polio. As

Coffee County Rates Low on Economic Totem Pole

Last Tuesday before the Lions Club W. Todd, commissioner of agriculture and industry for Alabama, said he was out to reverse the trend where 66 per cent of all high school graduates and 76 per cent of all college students leave the state when they finish their school.

Almost the same day Sylvia Porter in her column in the Birmingham News quoted U. S. Department of Commerce figures showing that the average U. S. city family income is $3,900 yearly.

So far for Coffee County, which is seeking to bring more people to Elba in town who feel they are doing all right for themselves and the rest of the town.

Satisfied with what measure of success they have attained, these merchants have not felt it necessary to join the Chamber of Commerce or other efforts seeking to make the town a better place to live.

In an effort to make them satisfied they are asked to look elsewhere in this issue of The Clipper at the picture showing last year's graduating class at the high school. They should go through the picture to pick out the number of these young people who are thus passing through and compare it with the number who have left this area for "greener pastures." By far the biggest majority of the group is gone forever from our trade territory.

Another picture which rights give Mr. Todd should ask themselves is, "How many merchants would it be if the income of my customers doubled?" This would still put Coffee County far below the national income average. It is up to the individual farmer and businessman in Coffee County to get out and better his own economic situation. We literally have to pull ourselves up by our own bootstraps but it can be done.

The commissioner of agriculture and industry pointed out that Alabama has certain advantages of climate and could be the nation if this part of the economy was properly worked. The vast majority of property owners in this area are failing to take advantage of this potential by improper harvesting of timber they do have and by failing to plant seedlings on idle land. In 15 years pine seedlings can be harvested for mulchwood and in 25 years 100 per cent can be taken in timber from land planted to pine seedlings.

Farmers who don't cultivate this crop for all the money there is in it, are only de-

The Wishes of the People—

A need $400,000,000 hydroelectric development on the Niagra River has been held up for years as have power developments in other states, by what amounts to political maneuvering. The Niagra is whether it is to be developed by five private utility companies which have long been ready to go ahead, and which would construct it with private capital and pay $23 million annually in taxes or whether it is to be undertaken on a tax-free, tax-subsidized, socialized basis by the federal government or New York State.

In July 1953, the House of Representatives voted 262 to 120 in favor of private enterprise, with the New York Congressmen approving it 32 to 9; the bill was not acted on in the Senate. The New York State
